Mastering Volunteer Retention In-Person Training

Training Description

Organizations all over the country have struggled with the retention of employees, and volunteer fire departments are no exception. Since COVID, the struggle to recruit and retain people has escalated.

Retaining good volunteers has a direct influence on the overall performance of your organization. It also enhances the ability to recruit new members. If you have a high retention rate, in most cases, you will have good recruitment success.

This training program will give you a new insight on retention of volunteers and assist you in keeping your top performers while enhancing organizational performance.

Outcomes

- ✓ Increase performance of current volunteers
